HYPERKERATOSIS, TONSIL

CLINICAL NOTE: A 42 year old white male. He was apparently in excellent health but had had a mild pharyngitis for several months. On examination yellowish white, slightly elevated spots like raw tapioca were seen in the crypts of the faucial and lingual tonsils and a few were sprinkled over the pharynx and margin of the epiglottis. Tonsillectomy was performed, the wounds healing without difficulty. Several weeks later there was an increase in the number of spots in the pharynx and some had appeared in the larynx. The patient continued in good health. Smears from the tonsils showed small colonies of mycelia which under low power appeared as in the inset. Attempts to cultivate them were unsuccessful.

PATHOLOGY: In the low power photomicrograph will be noted the marked reduction in lymphoid elements although several germinal centers (A) are still distinguishable. There is dense fibrosis of the underlying tissue which extends through the capsule into the musculature (B). Large areas of cartilage (C) and bone (D) can be recognized in this fibrous tissue. Most of the squamous epithelium present is hypertrophied and laminated masses of keratin overlie it (G). Under the high power the details of hyperkeratinization are shown. It will be noted that there is very little active inflammatory reaction. In Neg. 67242 the dark splotches (F) are collections of leptothrix mycelia and, even in the presence of these, there is little inflammatory reaction. A few lymphocytes are seen in the debris overlying the epithelium.

Clinically, this condition resembles an acute follicular tonsillitis except that there is no associated redness or swelling. The "spots" are quite adherent but on removal there is no pain or bleeding. The leptothrix is practically always associated with this condition, except, as Beck states, in those who use tobacco. There is so little inflammatory reaction, however, that the fungus is apparently an incidental feature. The etiology is not known.

119 NANCY SCOTT (7) BILLINGSLEA

(Cyrus 6, Francis 5, William 4, William 3, John 2, Francis 1.) Born Wilkes County, Georgia in 1807 moved to Morgan County, Georgia with her parents where she married 26 August 1824 William Ware, born Georgia in 1804. See Ware Excursus. There appears to be some uncertainty among some of her descendants as to her name and they claim it was "ANN SCOTT". We have recorded her as written in her father's will and as recorded in census records and other documents. She was legatee in her father's will in 1825. Resided in Morgan County, Georgia and moved to Perry County, Alabama about 1838 where she died in the late 1850's. He was a lawyer and was living in 1860, no record of his death.

Children:

- i James Ware: b 1826-27 Ga. Was a lawyer, enlisted in Confederate service in 1861 and died in service. Never married.
- ii Henry Ware: b 1829 Morgan Co., Ga. moved to Ala. with his parents. In 1850 he is listed as a resident of Dallas Co., Ala. and as a school teacher and resided in the home of Dr. Daniel Long. He married prior to 1856 Louisa E. Long, b Ala. 1836, daughter of above mentioned Dr. Long. <sup>See No. 314.</sup> They moved to Washington Co., Ala. where he engaged in farming and resided till after 1880 then moved to Bladon Springs, Ala. where they both died and are buried. We have not been able to secure any details of the family tho several of the children have been located. They had, known:
  - 1 William H. Ware: b 1856-57 m 1879 Sophia P. .... b Ala. 1859, resided Washington Co., Ala. in 1880.

Association of Military Surgeons of the United States
Hotel Statler, Cleveland, Ohio

For release at 2:40 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 11

Abstract of paper on

"The Medical Officer's Responsibility in the Present Emergency" by Lieut. Col. Leon A. Fox, U.S. Army

Medical men in military service fulfill their duties best by remembering at all times that they are medical men, Lieut. Col. Leon A. Fox of U.S. Army Medical Corps told the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States in convention in Cleveland today, Friday, October 11.

Lieut. Col. Fox bitterly criticized "those medical field marshals" who tell medical men "to forget you are a doctor."

He said that he would like to invite his listeners "to help me dig a special lower floor in hell for the fools who state, 'Forget you are a doctor - you are an Army officer.'"

"What is the nature of the medical service in the Army?" Lieut. Col. continued. "The Medical Department of the Army is responsible for the care of the sick and wounded and for initiating such approved preventive medicine measures as will safeguard the health of the troops."

The care of the sick and wounded, he continued, was essentially the same problem which the doctor faced in civil life and called for the same high standards that mark civil care. One difference, he added, was that military service increased the danger of communicable diseases.

The medical man in military service has duties with respect to the prevention of disease which the doctor in civil life leaves to public health authorities, he added.

Lieut. Col. Fox said that a medical officer also had certain duties of
